The Jonas Lawrence house at 110 Winn St. is Burlington's only known and best preserved example of a Greek Revival "temple" form house.

John Goff suggests in Burlington's historic resources survey (based on the writings of Lotta Cavanagh Dunham) that Burlington housewright, Jonas Lawrence, may have built a Federal style timber framed building on this site in 1799. The building was modernized later in the 19th century, when the Greek Revival style came into fashion after the 1830s-1840s.

Burlington's most active 19th century housewright and cabinetmaker, William Lawrence (1799-1872) was the son of Eber Lawrence (1771-1855) and Lucy Burton Lawrence; WL's father was born in Hollis, New Hampshire, the son of Oliver and Mary Lawrence. LBL was born in Burlington, Mass.

WL married Julia Burton (1800-1856) in 1823, the daughter of Capt. Burton of 3 Winona Rd.; we do not have a record of the marriage or JBL's 1856 death taking place in Burlington, Mass. In 1857 WL married Frances Abigail Walker (1823-1901) in Burlington, Mass.; FAW was the daughter of Edward (1788-1852) and Hannah Walker (1795-1883), who lived across the road.

Goff believes it was likely that WL was responsible for the 1860s-1870s renovations of WL's second Burlington home, the house at 110 Winn St. and that he occupied the house with his second wife. As of July 2000, this house is still standing; see John Goff's Historic Resources Survey form for more details.

The house was transferred to WL's second wife, Frances Abigail Walker Lawrence and ca. 1875 the house was supposedly transferred to Abel Harrington.

Another family photograph identified this as an 1898 photograph with Kenneth Brown family members, but the 1880 and 1900 federal census does not list a Kenneth Brown; the 1900 federal census does list a Joseph Brown as the head of household. The 1880 federal census does not mention an Abel Harrington, but it does mention Peter Harrington (b. 1838), a farmer from Ireland; his wife, Julia, b. ca. 1852 from Ireland, and their children, Julia (b. ca. 1864), Mary (b. ca. 1870), and George H. Harrington (b. ca. 1874). The 1900 federal census notes that Abel Harrington (b. 1814) was living with his son-in-law, Walter A. Hanson (b. 1854 in New Hampshire) and his wife, Ellen M. Hanson (b. 1845 in Massachusetts); the relationships and identifications require more research.

The property transferred to Ethel R. Bixby in 1912 and Lena Harrington Pratt (Mrs. Leroy Pratt, granddaughter of Abel Harrington) in 1934. The property transferred to LHP's nephew, Kenneth Brown and his wife, Elta B. Brown after 1948. Between the 1978-1998 the property was transferred to Donald and Dorothy A. Gordon (John Goff Historic Resources survey form for 110 Winn St., Burlington vital records, Dunham, p. 84).

Caption reads: the Frank Reed family lived on Chestnut Ave.

It appears that this was the family of Franklin Oliver (Frank) Reed. FOR was born in Burlington July 31, 1826 and was the son of Isaiah Reed (1795-1881) and Sally Ellsworth Reed (1785-1878). According to Ashworth's research, FOR was married three times; his wives were: Abbie H. Roberts (1837-1890), Frances Hawkins, and Mary Charlotte Roberts (1829-1883); he married MCRR on November 6, 1850. The couple had at least one child, Franklin Reed (b. 1855). MCRR died in 1883 and FOR died sixteen years later in 1899. The family lived at the family homestead at 23 Chestnut Ave.; as of 2000, the house is still standing. It appears that the property had passed through the family line from his great-great-great-great grandfather, John Reed (1660-1722/3). JR was a weaver who bought the family homestead from Henry Baldwin (1664-1739); for more information see will dated July 20, 1732. JR's father, Ralph Reed (1630-1711/2) immigrated from England and later purchased the farm of Sylvanus Wood (1748-1840) (Cutter, genealogy resource file accessed November 2000).

The national Grange was organized in 1867 and the first meeting the Massachusetts Grange was held in 1873. The Burlington Grange #351 was organized in 1915 and was primarily a rural farmer's organization; for forty or more years, the Grange served as an important social and service organization for Burlington and was noted for its community work. Arthur Nichols served as secretary from 1915-1953 and wrote a history of the organization, which Fogelberg partly records. When the Burlington Agricultural Society (organized in 1889) declined, the Grange continued to organize Burlington agricultural fairs.

This 1952 photograph shows seated: Harold Norton; Lillian Johnson; Mrs. Harold Norton; visiting State Granger Lena Hill; Olga Johnson, Gus Berthiaume. Standing: Jabez Early, Mary Bennett, Elizabeth Simms [Symmes?], Arthur Nichols, Vora Merrigan, Rhoda Govoni, unidentified.

By the 1970s, the organization was less active, due to the decline of farming in Burlington (Fogelberg, pp. 349-351).

Son of Chief Justice Samuel Sewall and Abigail (Devereux) Sewall, Samuel Sewall was born June 1, 1785 in Marblehead, Massachusetts. SS traced his lineage to Samuel Sewall of Newbury, Massachusetts, the first Sewall immigrant and the son of Henry Sewall, the mayor of Coventry, England. Samuel Sewall was a direct descendant of Judge Samuel Sewall, Chief Justice of the Province of Massachusetts Bay from 1718-1728 and the justice who presided at the Salem witch trials in 1692. Another relation, Rev. Joseph Sewall, was a well-known minister of the Old South Church, Boston, Mass.

After a preparatory course in Marblehead, SS entered Harvard College in 1800 and graduated with honors in 1804. After graduation, SS began the study of theology and took orders in the Episcopal church, of which his parents were members. SS officiated at the Episcopal church in Cambridge, but became dissatisfied with this choice and embraced the principles and service of the Congregational church.

After the death of Rev. John Marrett, SS came to Burlington as a candidate for the pulpit and was ordained April 13, 1814. January 1, 1818 he married Rev. John Marrett's daughter, Martha Marrett.

SS served as minister of the Congregation church from 1814-1842. Sewall organized the first Sunday School and during his pastorate, the Female Missionary and Charitable Society (later the Ladies Benevolent Society) was organized in 1840, through the efforts of the Sewall's wife (and the first president), Martha (Marrett) Sewall.

SS preached for several years at North Woburn, where a church was formed under his ministry. Sewall's last sermon was preached at Carlisle, Massachusetts on August 11, 1867 and his last public exercises was at the ordination of Mr. Alfred S. Hudson, the pastor of Burlington, on December 19, 1867.

SS is also remembered as a historian and genealogist. He made several contributions to the American Quarterly Register, including "A Brief Survey of the Congregational Churches and Ministers of Middlesex County and Chelsea in the County of Suffolk" in 1838-1839 and a "Memoir of Hon. Samuel Sewall, Esq." in 1841. The History of Woburn was in press at the time of his death, February 18, 1868. Sewall was buried in the Chestnut Hill Cemetery in Burlington, Massachusetts February 21, 1868 (Samuel Sewall "Burlington" in Samuel Adams Drake's History of Middlesex County (Boston: Estes and Lauriat, 1880, pp. 299-300 and Dunham, pp. 14-16).

Rev. Charles H. Washburn was born in Auburndale, Mass. December 9, 1860. He was educated in Melrose public schools and graduated from Amherst College in 1883. He studied at Andover Theological School and Union Theological Seminary in New York. He served as pastor for Western Avenue Union Chapel in Boston, Mass. and Congregational churches in Saugus, Berlin, Falmouth, Neponset, and Maynard. He also supplied pulpits in Woburn, Mass. and Fall River, Mass. While serving at Falmouth, Mass., he wrote Falmouth by the Sea and Residential Falmouth. Washburn married Louise W. Chaffin in 1886. Together they had four sons and a daughter. The oldest son died in 1930.

Washburn was the eighth pastor called to the Congregational Church. Washburn was called ca. 1888, after Rev. Anderson resigned to accept a position as an American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions missionary to Roberts College, Istanbul, Turkey. Washburn served as pastor from 1889-1891 and again from 1922 to his death in November 14, 1931.

Washburn completed the 1888 renovations and the meeting house was rededicated December 1888. In 1889, Washburn was the pastor of both the Burlington church and the North Woburn Church. Washburn continued as pastor until 1902, when Rev. William Bacon, a native of Bedford, Mass., was called as pastor.

Washburn is credited with conceiving the idea of organizing a society that promoted agricultural excellence. As a result, the Burlington Agricultural Society was organized in October 1889 (Fogelberg, pp. 216, 289, 293, 297).

Charles McIntire was born March 08, 1835 in Burlington, Mass., the son of Daniel McIntire and Hannah Haywood (Richardson) McIntire. On March 13, 1866 CM married Helen Augusta Skelton (1844-1922) in Lexington, Mass.; HAS and her family were Burlington residents. Together they had two sons, Wilbur Charles McIntire (1866-1938) and Walter Sweetser McIntire (1872-1929). CM died August 25, 1908 in Burlington, Mass. (genealogy resource file accessed May 2000).

In 1870, CM bought the Marion Tavern and 65 acres of land. In 1902 McIntire bought 62 more acres of the old Marion farm, then owned by William E. Carter (Fogelberg, p. 198). McIntire ran a large dairy farm and an extensive milk route for many years. The McIntires are credited with giving the Grandview property its name, due to the farm's hillside setting and the "grand view" of Mt. Monadnock. By 1951, Grandview Farm was owned by Bernice McIntire Sleeper (Charles McIntire's granddaughter) and her husband, Gove Sleeper (John Goff Historic Resources Survey form for 59 Center St.)

CM was the town surveyor of highways in 1898 and fielddriver in 1897.

Rev. Dr. James Walker was born August 16, 1794 at 9 Bedford St., the fifth child of Major General John Walker and Lucy (Johnson) Walker. The former was a Woburn selectman, representative to the General Court, and a founder of Woburn and the latter was the descendent of Captain Edward Johnson, surveyor and a founder of Woburn.

JW attended local schools and graduated from Harvard University in 1814. Following graduation, he returned to Burlington to teach at the West School and then later at Phillips Exeter Academy. In 1818, Walker became an ordained minister and made significant contributions to American theology and education, becoming one of the founders of the American Unitarian Association (1825), as well as Harvard College professor (1839-1853) and Harvard College president (1853-1860). He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, and president of the Trustees of the Charlestown Free Schools. Harvard honored him with two memorial murals: one is located in Appletown Chapel, the other in Memorial Hall.

JW died Dec. 23, 1874 in Cambridge, Massachusetts and is buried in the Old Burying Ground.

Nathan Simonds Jr. (1823-1903)

Marshall Simonds is the best known Simonds in Burlington. Marshall Simonds was born at the home of his father, Nathan Simonds, on Terrace Hall Ave.

Marshall Simonds purchased the house and the land that was originally owned by Humphrey Prescott. According to Dunham, Peter Rogan purchased the Prescott house about 1860; the house was originally built by William Lawrence for Humphrey Prescott ca. 1840. The house and land was sold to Marshall Simonds; Simonds nephew, James Otis Simonds, sold it to William McKinnon of Winchester. McKinnon moved the house to its current location on 36 Bedford St.; as of May 2000 the house is still standing. For more information on the house, see John Goff's Historic Resources Survey form for 36 Bedford St. (Dunham, p. 98).

The heirs of George Bennett (1815-1887) sold the Bennett estate to Marshall Simonds after GB's death (Fogelberg, p. 199; see Goff's survey forms for 13 Sears Street and 2 Mill Street for information on the Gleason-Simonds block).

According to Fogelberg "Simonds left no direct heirs and when his will was probated, the town of Burlington became the principal beneficiary of his estate, valued in excess of $100,000. Item 5 in his will states:

To the town of Burlington, Massachusetts, the place of my birth, I give and devise the farm that I purchased of George H. and Edwin A. Bennett, with the buildings thereon, situated in the center of the town, to be used as a public park under the provisions of Chapter 28 of the Revised Laws of Massachusetts, and to be known as Simonds Park: provided, however, that within one year from the probate of my will, the town shall accept the provisions of said Chapter 28: and provided that at a meeting called and notified at least seven days in advance, in the same manner as are meetings for the election of town officers, a majority of the voters, voting by ballot with the use of the voting list, shall vote to accept said gift and devises: and provided also that the town shall vote to include in said Park its lot of land on which stood the town hall which was burned.

The will further provided that the executor was directed to pay any reasonable sum for any other lot of land which the town may select for its town hall, that the remainder of his estate be placed in trust to Otis Simonds, James Otis Simonds, and Walter S. Skelton who were empowered to pay the net income or any portion thereof to the town for the 'care, improvement, and beautifying of said Simonds Park.

The Town of Burlington approved the gift in 1906 and elected the first Board of Park Commissioners. They were Lester B. Skelton, Hugh Stewart, and Charles H. Walker. They laid out the first baseball diamond in Simonds Park in 1909." Over the years, the Simonds estate trustees have acquired all of the property that is now on the Common: the Rogan house (bought in 1920, deeded to the town in 1930); Pollock house (1951-1953); Parsonage or Alley house (1944-1957); Pearsons or Symmes house (1944-1953). The houses were moved off the property and the land was deeded to the town (Fogelberg, pp. 342-343; also see p. 348 for more information on the Simonds trust and the construction of the 1915 Town Hall, as well as the records of the Town Clerk, deeds and agreements for Marshall Simonds Trust, 1914-1957).

The old high school, the Marshall Simonds Middle School (114 Winn St.), was rechristened with the Simonds name in 1973 (Fogelberg, p. 271); this building is in the potential Winn Street historic district (see Goff's Winn St. area form of the Historic Resources Survey for more information).

Second row: Mrs. Samuel Sewall, Martha Sewall Martin, and Martha Elizabeth Sewall Curtis. Third row: Hired man, Grandma Sewall, and the maid (Fogelberg, p. 124Y). It is probable that the hired man is Otis Trider (b. May 1874 in Nova Scotia, Canada) and that the maid is Mary E. Trider (b. Apr. 1874 in New Brunswick, Canada). Photograph is taken on the steps of the second Sewall house.

Samuel Sewall Jr. (1819-1903) was born October 29, 1819 in Burlington, Mass. He was the son of Rev. Samuel Sewall (1785-1868) and Martha Marrett Sewall (1783-1860). SS (1819-1903) married Elizabeth Brown (1820-1909) on March 21, 1844 in Burlington, Massachusetts. They had two children, Samuel Brown Sewall (1846-1883) and Martha Elizabeth Sewall Curtis (1858-1915).

Nellie Louise Sewall (1873-1959) was the daughter of Samuel Brown Sewall (1846-1883) and Louise Elizabeth Farrington Sewall (1848-1917) and the granddaughter of SS (1819-1903). NLS was born in Cambridge, Massachusetts and married Edward Dana Bennett (1871-1941) on June 29, 1898 in Woburn, Massachusetts. EDB and NLSB had three children: Joshua Holden Bennett (1899-1968); Elizabeth Mary Bennett Lowther (1902-1977); and Charles Winn Bennett (1911-1988). Note that EMBL was a founding member of the Burlington Historical Commission. Grandma Sewall is possibly Martha Marrett Sewall Martin (1823-1907), the wife of Luther Pattee Martin (1830-1899) and Samuel Sewall Jr.'s sister (genealogy resource files accessed July 2000 and 1900 federal census records)

Clarence Bennett was born May 02, 1919 in Burlington, Massachusetts. He was the second of Harold Wilson Bennett (b. June 07, 1872 in Burlington) and Viola D. (Mascho) Bennett's four children. Clarence Bennett was the grandson of George Holden Bennett (1841-1919).

The photo was taken on the George Holden Bennett farm on Francis Wyman Rd. The farm spilled over the line into Billerica; the farm included a large farmhouse, attached barn and shed. The farm was part of the original Wyman farm (Fogelberg, p. 200).

Possibly William Winn (1809-1892), the son of Col. William Winn, or William H. Winn (1840-1898), Col. William Winn's grandson.

The house at the corner of Winn St. and Newbridge Ave. is listed on Fogelberg's 1900 map as the home of William H. Winn, but Fogelberg notes that William H. Winn was did not live there in 1900 (Fogelberg, p. 190).

Built in 1732 by Timothy Winn (1712-1800), the house at the corner of Winn St. and Newbridge Ave. remained in the Winn family until World War I, when it was sold and made into a multi-family dwelling by the addition of an ell. In the fall of 1938, the house was dismantled, moved to Wellesley, Mass. and reconstructed at 99 Pond Rd. The reconstruction was done under the supervision of the late architect, Edward A. Hubbard (South Natick, Mass.), for Mrs. S. M. Williams (Mary P. Hunnewell) a granddaughter of Mr. H. H. Hunnewell; the home was for her daughter, Mrs. Joseph B. Fyffe. Mr. Aand Mrs. Fyffe and their family moved into the house in 1939. The home is one of 61 properties that comprise the Hunnewell Estates Historic District at Washington St. and Pond Rd. in Wellesley and Natick (NRDIS 4/14/1988 and Fogelberg, p. 190).

Born July 14, 1846 in Burlington, Mass., TIR was the youngest of Isaiah Reed and Mary Blake (Wales) Reed's two children. TIR married Margaret Ellen Dadmun (1846-1916) of Groton, Mass. on May 17, 1870 in Burlington, Mass. They had four children: Grace Wales Reed (1871-1877); Carrie Florence Reed (b. 1876); and twins, Guy Elsworth (b. 1888) and Ernest Young Reed (1888-1918). Both sons helped with the business, and GR assumed management when TIR died July 20, 1933 in Burlington, Mass. (genealogy file on the Reed family accessed May 2000).

TIR's father, Isaiah Reed (1816-1874), built the home at 336 Cambridge St. ca. 1820, and started a famous ham-curing business on the property about 1846. IR is credited with being the first farmer to ship Baldwin apples to European markets.

TIR worked on his father's farm as a child, and learned the business of smoking hams. Like his father, TIR attended local schools and went to the Warren Academy in Woburn, Mass. By 1872, TIR left the family business and went to work in Boston as a grocer; he returned later in the year to manage the family business, due to his father's poor health. After his father died in 1874, he leased the farm from his mother in 1874 and set about enlarging the business.

During the late 19th century and early 20th century, Burlington was the home of a large number of piggeries, which helped increase the size of TIR's business. The processing plant was originally large enough for 100 hams developed into a floor area of 10,000 square feet, which included three large smoke houses and a vault for 400,000 pounds of meat. As a result, TIR developed a large retail business in Winchester, Medford, and Boston. T. I. Ham Works acquired a five-year contract with the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions' (ABCFM) Robert College in Istanbul, Turkey; this contract was awarded after the Congregational Church's seventh minister, Rev. Anderson, resigned in 1888 to work with the ABCFM at Roberts College. The hams were imported to Chicago by rail by the 1910s and by 1914, the ham works employed 15-17 men. The business declined due to changing markets during the Great Depression; the business ceased operation in 1953 and most of the barns burned in the 1980s. For more information on the Reed Hamwork operation, see Fogelberg, pp. 322-323 and Sanborn maps.

TIR was very active in the community and served in the following town offices:

Library Trustees (1880)

School Committee (1882-1883, 1885)

Overseers of the Poor (1886)

Board of Health (1902, the first Board of Health)

TIR helped raise funds to remodel the Congregational Church in 1888; he also served as a deacon and well as fifty-one year stint as the first Sunday School Superintendent. TIR was the second president of the Burlington Agricultural Society and helped make the agricultural show a success. TIR also served as president as the of the Boston and Lowell Street Railway Company (John Goff's Historic Resources Survey form for 336 Cambridge St. and Fogelberg, pp. 295, 322-323)

Photograph by H. S. Dunshee's New Photograph Gallery (Woburn, Mass.)

WEC was born November 6, 1843 in Burlington, Mass.; he was the son of Jefferson Carter (b. 1804 in Burlington, Mass.) and Maria (Wilson) Carter of Charlestown, Mass. WEC married Nellie Welsh on March 3, 1889 in Woburn, Mass. They had at least two children, Hattie I. Carter (b. 1890) and William Carter (b. 1894). WEC died February 14, 1902 at his home on Arlington St. in Burlington, Mass. (genealogy file accessed May 2000).

WEC ran a heel shop or shoe stock factory on Cambridge St., near the intersection of Bedford St.; the shop stood where Mrs. MacInnis' red brick house stands at 137 Cambridge St. George Tebbetts was a partner in the shop after he returned from the Civil War. In 1902, Charles McIntire, owner of the old Marion farm, bought the Carter property, increasing his holdings by 62 acres. The building stood between the horse barn (White Construction Company as of 1976) and Samuel Sumner Shed's (1826-1890) house. SSS' house is now the site of the Charles Tobin Boston (1868-1954) bungalow (135 Cambridge St.), built ca. 1920 and later owned by Fred Colvin. As of 1951, the Carter heel shop was no longer standing (Dunham, p. 98 and Fogelberg, pp. 198, 320-321).

William Carter's heel shop employees were from Burlington and Woburn; Woburn girls boarded with Catherine (McLaughlin) Rogan, the wife of Peter Rogan.

The factory appears to have operated between 1880 and 1904. Fogelberg notes that the shoddy shop or pancake shop operated by Charles Haven in 1870 went to William Carter and Sumner Shed, who ran the shop until 1900; the factory employed about 20 people. The owner of record in 1900 is Jonas C. Haven, at which point Fogelberg notes that the shop disappears (Fogelberg, p. 321). The 1880 federal census notes that William E. Carter boarded with the Peter and Catherine (McLaughlin) Rogan and that he worked at a shoe stock factory. Sanborn maps show the shoe factory on the Aug. 1899 and May 1904 map; the June 1910 and May 1918 map show a vacant and out of repair factory.

Scrap leather trimmings were acquired from Woburn tanneries and were soaked in a large boiler until soft and pliable. The leather pieces were cut with a die struck by a big wooden mallet. The workers then cemented together the die-cut pieces using a paste made from flour and water. The pieces were put in the drying room, which was directly over the boiler and, when dry, the units were rolled to the desired thickness and cut in two, making two heels. The finished product was sent to a shoe shop in Brockton, Mass. (Fogelberg, p. 321).

WEC's home was located at the corner of Sears St. and Center St., where the Colonial Building (35 Center St.) is now located; the Colonial Building is the former location of the law firm, Shea and Murray. The town pound (where animals were placed after being herded by the field driver; see MGL chapter 49, section 26-31) was located at the corner of Bedford and Center St., opposite of William Pollock's house; WEC served as poundkeeper in 1893 and 1896. The house was built by Albert Wood prior to 1851 and was used as the parsonage for Rev. Harrison Parks. After WEC's death in 1902, his widow sold the house to Miss Addie May Blodgett (1882-1931); after AMB's death, the house became the property of heirs, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Locke. After the Locke's death, the house was bought by Frank Mason. WEC was a direct descendent of Rev. Thomas Carter of Woburn, Mass. For more information on the Blodgett house, see Historic homes and farms: item 175 (Fogelberg, Woburn Daily Times Chronicle article, June 11, 1985 and Cavanagh/Zahora History of Burlington: 1640-1950. WBF was born Nov. 16, 1828 in Boston, Mass., the son of well-known clergyman, Rev. Dr. Nathaniel Langdon Frothingham (1793-1870) and Ann Gorham Brooks (daughter of Peter Chardon Brooks and sister of Mrs. Edward Everett and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams). WBF was the brother of the well-known clergyman and author, Octavius Brooks Frothingham (1822-1895).

WBF is said to have purchased the Jotham Johnson (b. 1778) house at 56 Lexington St. from George and Abigail Crosby October 1851; for more information, see the photograph description Historic homes and farms: item 154. Elijah Marion (1812-1884) had hired the farm ca. 1840-1851.

For a description of the property purchased by WBF, see Fogelberg p. 212. November 1851--one month after he purchased the property--WBF sold his father 20 acres across the street for Rev. Frothingham's new home. Built in 1853, the Frothingham mansion is located at 3 Theresa Ave. (also 6 Spruce Hill Rd.); as of May 2000 it is still standing. When NLF died in 1870, the Frothingham mansion was bought by Samuel Rodman. By 1875, WBF's house (the Jotham Johnson house) was sold to Samuel Rodman.

WBF served in the following town offices:

School Committee (1854, 1857)

Surveyor of Highways (1855)

WBF served as a lieutenant in the American Civil War. His wife, Fanny Ward Frothingham worked as a volunteer nurse in the Civil War.

EMW enlisted June 1, 1918 as a Yeoman F.

Born at Sabattus, Maine (now Webster), Nov. 25, 1898, Edith Walker Brown was the daughter of Harry E. P. and Esther Doherty Walker. She graduated from Lisbon Falls High School in 1916 and later attended Bliss Business College in Lewiston. Edith enlisted in the U.S. Naval Reserve Force in Boston on July 12, 1918 as a Yeoman. On July 25, 1919 she was released from active duty to accept a civil service appointment. EMW married Chester Brown and had one son, Donald W. Gillis.

Edith's first position was as a clerk-typist at the Boston Naval Shipyard. She resigned in 1922 to enter private industry but was reinstated into civil service in 1934. She held positions in the Navy Department and the Veterans Administration until she transferred to Hanscom Field in 1951. Edith worked as a clerk-typist until her stint with the Veterans Administration in Boston, where she worked with ex-servicemen's insurance.

At Hanscom Field, Edith started as a stock record clerk and then became a supervisor of the newly established Stock Control Section of the Electronic Systems Command. At Electronic Systems she developed her own innovations and kept up with Air Force innovations in the research and development of aircraft. Her job involved keeping track of aircraft equipment and parts. At a retirement interview she explained, "It was at first a new section. I had to grow with it."

Edith retired in 1969 after 38 years of federal service. Edith was awarded the Air Force Systems Command Certificate of Merit for her performance as supervisor of Stock Control Unit of the Supplies Management Section of the Chief of Supply Branch. The letter accompanying the award read in part: "As a direct result of your efforts, the mission of the Stock Control Unit has been successfully accomplished and the System has been so improved that the organizations being supported are now receiving the most effective results possible." Among the many awards Mrs. Brown received in recognition of outstanding accomplishments are two superior performance awards, a Quality Salary Increase, AFSC Certificate of Merit and awards received from the Navy Department.

Edith Walker Brown died Dec. 12, 1986 in Hobe Sound, Florida (January 14, 1969 unidentified newspaper article).

AJC was the son of Thomas Crawford (1853-1898), born in Tullington, Donegal County, Ireland and France Jane Dobbins (1853-1943). AJC was born in 1893, the tenth of eleven children (Margaret, Mary Jane, Catherine, George, Thomas William, James, Elizabeth Anne, Frances Rebecca, Sarah Theresa, and Samuel Alfred).

In 1918, AJC immigrated to the United States from Ireland at the age of 25; shortly after immigrating, he moved to Woburn, Massachusetts. He married Elizabeth Ann Cassidy (1897-1971) and together they raised seven children, Katherine Elizabeth, Andrew, Herbert William, Lester Edward, Joan Frances, Warren Thomas, and David Warren.

AJC worked on the farm as a young man, when it belonged to his two brothers, James Crawford (1886-1938) and Thomas "Willie" William Crawford (1883-1944). TWC took over the farm ca. 1942, when JC bought a farm on Washington Street, Woburn, Massachusetts. AJC took over farm after TWC's death in 1944. The construction of Rt. 128 split the farm in two parts, requiring a mile and a half detour down Newbridge Ave. AJC sold the farm ca. 1960 to Jack Moss. Prior to the Crawfords, the area was farmed by generations of the Winns, Cummings, and Marions.

The men are shoveling pig manure from Souza's piggery; Souza's Piggery was located where Lt. Litchfield Rd. is located as of June 2000.

MPCHC was the daughter of Rev. John P. Cowles and Eunice Caldwell Cowles of Ipswich, Mass. After their marriage in 1838, the couple moved to Oberlin, Ohio, where JPC was a professor of Hebrew at Oberlin College and a recognized scholar of Greek, Latin, Syriac, French, German, and Italian. After a dispute with College President Finney, JPC and ECC moved to Elyria, Ohio to start a school. Daughters Mary Phelps was born in 1839 and Roxanna Caldwell was born in 1841 in Elyria, Ohio. The Cowles returned to Ipswich, Mass. In 1844 at the invitation of the Ipswich Academy trustees; the trustees invited the couple to reestablish the school and Ipswich Academy became the Ipswich Female Academy. The school brochure advertised that the academy aimed to "train healthy companionable self-reliant women disposed and prepared to be useful and acceptable in family, the school, and general society." MPCHC attended the school, along with the rest of her family.

MPCHC's first husband was Dr. Adino Brackett Hall and her second husband was John C. Cummings. JCC was the former president of the National Shawmut Bank, and owner of one of the largest tanneries in Woburn; Fogelberg notes that a Cummings tannery was near the Mill Pond dam and was located in North Woburn. John Goff's historic resources survey note that a Cummings tannery also existed at 99-100 Winn Street; see the historic resources form for 99 Winn St. and 100 Winn St. for more detail (see 1888 Sanborn maps, Fogelberg p. 318, and John Goff's historic resources survey for more detail).

The Cummings estate included over 400 acres; 294 acres of the land was in Burlington, and the remainder was in Woburn. In 1900 there were three large piggeries on the farm and more than half the swine in Burlington were raised here before transported to the Brighton livestock market. The land in Burlington included 24 acres that were previously known as the Gage farm and 109 acres that were previously known as the David and Benjamin Blanchard farm. The latter included most of Babylon Hill where the Nike site was built and where the Northeastern University buildings are located. In 1900 the Blanchard farmhouse and barn was still standing; the forty farmhands that worked on the Cummings estate lived in the Blanchard farmhouse and the nearby homes. The land passed from the Reeds, Blanchards, Cummings, to the City of Boston. In 1955 the U.S. federal government took a portion of the land for a Nike missile site, along with a 28.6 acre easement surrounding the base. In 1963 the federal government conveyed a portion of the land to Northeastern University.

The Cummings home was a three-story Victorian mansion that faced the intersection of Cambridge St. and South Bedford St. JC died December 21, 1898 and MPCHC continued to lived on the estate for the next sixteen years. The house was empty for a number of years after MPCHC's death in 1927 and was destroyed by fire in 1937.

MPCHC felt as if she was paid too much of Burlington's tax revenue, claiming that she along paid ten percent of the Burlington's tax base; indeed in 1900 MPCHC paid $874 of the $10,426 tax revenue. Upon her death, MPCHC bequeathed the entire estate to the City of Boston for recreational purposes. In 1964 the Town of Burlington adopted an order of taking for all of the property located in the Town of Burlington lying westerly of South Bedford St., excepting the Northeastern University land and property taken by the Burlington Water District in 1958 for a standpipe; the taking was for park and cemetery purposes. The land is still held by the City of Boston; as of May 2000 local papers reported that the nature of the trust is being investigated.

MPCHC died December 23, 1927 of bronchitis and was buried next to her first husband, Dr. Adino Brackett Hall in the Cowles family plot in the Ipswich Memorial Cemetery (undated biography manuscript, author unknown in archives' reference files; Fogelberg, pp. 215, 216, 317, 318, Probate and Family Court amended complain trial court civil number 5246).

Abbie Abbott's mother was probably James Bustead's (ca. 1842-1926) second wife, Mary J. Brooks (b. ca. 1855). JB and his first wife, Elizabeth Ray Bustead (b. ca. 1846-1891) were both born in Ireland. We know they had at least six children: Mary E. (1869-1899); Elizabeth (b. ca. 1870-1893); Annie Mabel (b. 1881); George Washington (b. 1883); William Andrew (1884-1950); and Robert Alexander (b. 1886). After the death of his first wife in 1893, JB married his second wife, Mary J. Brooks November 29, 1893 in Burlington, Mass. Jack Carr was probably John E. Carr (b. 1872), the fourth child of Patrick (1844-1900) and Mary Carr (b. 1837); both PC and MC were born in Ireland. FHL was the only child of Thomas and Honora Lahey; he was born June 1, 1880 in Haverhill, Mass. He attended Haverhill schools and worked for his father's contracting firm, Fletcher & Lahey. FHL entered Harvard Medical School in 1900 and after graduation acquired experience at Boston City Hospital. In 1908 Lahey became the resident surgeon at a branch of the Boston City Hospital, Haymarket Relief Station. FHL married Alice Wilcox of Montclair, New Jersey in 1909.

FHL was on staff at Harvard and Tufts Medical School, and served in World War I as the chief surgeon at an evacuation hospital. FHL developed a vision of a medically complete hospital or clinic, a group practice approach such as that at the Mayo Clinic in Minnesota. In 1923, FHL and a surgeon, anesthesiologist, and nurse opened a clinic in his Beacon Street apartment in Boston. In 1926 the clinic moved to 605 Commonwealth Ave.; the Lahey Clinic remained at this location for fifty-five years. FHL pioneered in thyroid and gall bladder surgery; the clinic also became known for its expertise in liver, pancreas, and biliary tract surgery. The Lahey Clinic also did work on radiation therapy for cancer, safe use of frozen blood for surgery, development of a heart-lung machine, and chemotherapy research. The Lahey Clinic was affiliated with two Boston hospitals, New England Baptist and New England Deaconess.

FHL died in 1953. After the death of his wife, AWL, in 1963, the clinic was reorganized into the non-profit Lahey Clinic Foundation. The foundation was administered by a board of trustees and staff physicians. By 1970 the foundation was a multi-speciality organization with 100 full-time staff physicians, 70 resident physicians in training, 550 nursing, technical, and clerical personnel caring for 500 patients a day; the foundation operated the 60-bed Brooks Hospital, but was doing business at ten different locations in Boston.

The foundation sought to a site to relocate and consolidate its facilities; a forty acre site was located next to Rt. 128 and the New England Executive Park in Burlington, Mass. The foundation decided that Burlington would be the site of its 200-bed comprehensive diagnostic and treatment hospital; many Burlington residents were concerned about the taking forty acres off the tax rolls, but a solution was found and the January 1971 town meeting approved the construction of Lahey Clinic. Construction started in 1974 after a certificate of need was obtained from the Massachusetts Dept. of Public Health. Construction for halted by litigation from local physicians who worked at neighboring hospitals, organized as the Concerned Committee for Hospital Cost Control. In 1977, the Massachusetts Superior Court ruled that the facility was needed and the facility moved from Boston to Burlington in November 1980. For more information, see Fogelberg, pp. 382-383 (John Edward Fogelberg, "The Story of Lahey Clinic," Woburn Daily Times, Burlington edition, December 1, 1987).

Note of verso: July 27, [19]13. Unsigned and unidentified note with photograph reads: rear left is my mother, Lillian C. (Braver) Welch. Rear right is my aunt Florence E. (Braver) McIntire. The note continues "I think the lady on the front left is my great grandmother--but I'm not sure. And I have not idea who the other lady is..."

According to Marion Welch Braley and family history research, the woman in the photograph is Lillian Christina Brauer Welch, the wife of Frank William Welch; the couple probably lived in Woburn at the time and were visiting their relatives, the Deloreys in Burlington. LCW was the daughter of George Henry Brauer and Harriet Jane "Jennie" Delorey; HJD was the daughter of John W. Delorey (born ca. 1850 in Tracadie, Nova Scotia) and Pauline Phelps Delorey (b. ca. 1851 in Wilmington, Mass.) Mrs. Braley knows that the Delorey family lived in the Gleason-Bennett-Simonds house; federal census records confirm this and when compared to the image in Historic homes and farms: item 331, it appears that this photograph was taken on the front porch of the Gleason-Bennett-Simonds house. It appears that the older woman on the left may be Pauline Phelps Delorey. Note that Delorey was also spelled Delory and Deloria in various records (November 2000 interview with Marion Welsh Braley and genealogy resource file research November 2000).

The four Skelton brothers, Horace Bradford, Orray Shedd, Walter Winn, and Lester Brown, were very active in the Burlington community and were the children of Bradford Skelton and Almira (Shedd) Skelton, both of Burlington, Mass. Bradford Skelton (1830-1885), traveled to the goldfields of California 1851-1852; he returned to Burlington after 1857, and married Almira Shedd in Woburn, Mass. in 1863.

MESC was born on May 18, 1858 in Burlington Mass. She was the youngest child of Elizabeth Brown Sewall (1820-1909) and Samuel Sewall, Jr. (1819-1903). She was the youngest of two children; her brother, Samuel Brown Sewall, was born August 17, 1846, and was 12 years older than MESC.

MESC's father was a farmer; he also served as town treasurer from 1856-1892 and 1895-1896; town clerk from 1863-1893 and 1895-1900; church and parish treasurer for 40 years; church and parish treasurer for 35 years; and church deacon for 35 years.

MESC was the granddaughter of Rev. Samuel Sewall (1785-1868) and she shared his love of local and family history. She was raised in the Sewall house on Lexington St., at the corner of Indendence Dr. This house burned April 23, 1897; prior to the construction of the second Sewall house late in 1897, the title passed to the daughter of MESC.

MESC attended high school in Cambridge, Mass., while living with her brother's family. She graduated in 1874 and was the youngest in her class.

MESC taught at the Center School from Dec. 5, 1887-March 16, 1888 in Burlington, Mass. In 1876--at only the age of 18--she was chosen to serve as the first woman on Burlington's School Committee.

MESC married Thomas Sullivan Curtis of Woburn, Mass. on July 3, 1879. TSC, a merchant, was born June 29, 1851 in Hingham, Mass., the son of Mary Silsbee Curtis and Job Curtis. The couple had two children, Dorothy Quincy Curtis and Martha E. Curtis. DQC was born June 11, 1885 and died shortly before her second birthday; she died August 13, 1887 of meningitis. MEC was stillborn on October 12, 1888. After the death of Dorothy, MESC, resumed teaching at the Center School in 1887 and 1888. MESC suffered another loss when her husband died of cancer on Dec. 27, 1888; he was 37 years of age.

MESC was a relatively prolific writer. In cooperation with William R. Cutter, MESC wrote a short history of Burlington for D. H. Hurd's 1890 History of Middlesex County (volume 1, pp. 663-680), as well as Ye Olde Meeting House; Addresses and Verses Relating to the Meeting House, Burlington, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, Built 1732, and Other Historical Addresses. (Boston: Anchor Linotype Print. Co., 1909). MESC was the Burlington correspondent for the Woburn Daily Times, and also wrote a series "About Woman" for that paper. Her articles provide valuable information on Burlington history, as well insights into her views on society. MESC also operated her own stenography business in Boston, although the exact dates have not yet been determined.

France E. Willard's 1893 Women of the Century notes that MESC graduated from a course in elocution at New England Conservatory in 1883. She spent a year in the study of oratory and used her skills for the women's suffrage movement. Her first appearance as a public lecturer was in the meetings of the National Woman Suffrage Association in Boston and elsewhere. In 1889, she was appointed state lecturer of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, speaking in various parts of the state. About 1893, MESC was the president of the Woburn

Equal Suffrage League. She was also active in urging women to vote for the school committee, the only form of suffrage granted to them in Massachusetts at the time.

MESC died April 27, 1915 in Burlington, Mass. after a week's bout with pneumonia (compiled from the research of Jim Ashworth, accessed August 2000).

Although the back of the image is backed with black construction, there is a small bit of text that reads: Pinehurst, Billerica, Massachusetts.

CTB (1868-1954) moved to Burlington prior to his marriage to Clara M. Shedd (b. 1873); the couple was married in Falmouth, Mass. on July 20, 1892. It seems that they went to Falmouth so they could be married by Rev. Charles H. Washburn (1860-1931), Burlington's Congregational minister from 1889-1891 and 1922-1931.

CTB was born October 1868 in Halifax, Nova Scotia, the son of John and Margaret Boston. CMSB was born in Burlington in August 1873, and was the daughter of Samuel Sumner Shedd (1826-1890) and SSS' second wife, Melvina Munroe Shedd (b. 1843); SSS' first wife, Mary Frances Hunt (b. 1829) was from Billerica. At the time of their marriage, CTB listed his occupation as a teamster (person who hauls goods by truck) and CMSB listed herself as an operative in a watch factory. We know that CTB was still working as a teamster in 1899, when the couple had, John Lloyd Boston, who was born in Burlington in May 24, 1899 .

It appears that CTB and CMSB rented the house of Clara's father, Samuel Sumner Shed; the 1900 federal census lists them as renters at what is now 135 Cambridge St. The couple built the bungalow at 135 Cambridge St. ca. 1920 on the site of SSS' house; as of 2000, the house is still standing.

Known locally as Tobe, CTB filled the following positions prior to his death in 1954:

Collector of Taxes (1900-1922)

Constable (1897-1911, 1905-1907)

Superintendent of Highways (1922-1933)

It is possible that the couple may have been involved in the shoe business on this site; although other sources show that William Edward Carter owned the shoe factory on Cambridge St. (see Buildings: item 47), we also know that Clara's father, Samuel Sumner Shed (known as Sumner), owned the Havenville "shoddy shop" or "pancake shop" (term used for shoestock manufacturers) with Samuel Sumner Shed (1826-1890) from 1877-1900 (see Buildings: item 2 for an image of the Havenville shop).

It is probable that Clara may have spent part of her life growing up on the Shedd farm at 4 Francis Wyman Rd. The house was built by her great-grandfather, Samuel Shed (1768-1861) who built the house ca. 1798, when he married his wife Lydia Clark Shedd (1772-1855); SS and LCS lived at the house until SS's death in 1861. It is probably that the house passed to Clara's grandfather, Samuel Shedd, Jr. (1801-1871) and his wife, Sarah Wyman Skelton (1800-1867)

Image is backed with black construction paper.
